PUANANI AND THE VOLCANO
a Children's Fiction Chapter Book
by Jo Ann Jeffries

Paperback 978-1-949711-05-9 • 6x9
$16.95 • 60 pages • Release: March 2020
Children's Fiction

Puanani and the Volcano is about the Kilauea eruption on the Big Island of Hawaii and how it affected an elementary school girl. It is an encouraging and meaningful story showing how Puanani turned her feelings of helplessness about the lava flowing into the ocean into a dogged determination to save as much sea life as possible—especially the turtles. Her persistence inspires her family and canoe club to help her in her quest to make the beaches and shorelines a cleaner and safer place for the animals and people who love them.

Age Level: 7 – 9/2nd – 3rd grade

Reviews from NetGalley

“Puanani became her own hero in this book. She started as a shy girl who was scared of presenting a science presentation in front of her class. When disaster strikes and earthquakes begin to occur over and over again, Puanani had to overcome another fear. The book describes how earthquakes happen and why. It also is a touching story of a young girl who stands up for what she believes in.”

– Ashley G.

“This was super cute. The illustrations are simple, but fun, and go with the story well. I loved how it showed how one person can really make a difference when they care about something. And I liked the Hawaiian vocab thrown in too!”

– Jini C.

HAVE YOU SEEN

Fiction

A young girl has lost her pet cat, Tucker, and sets out to find him around her rural home in Idaho. She runs across many other animals out in the wilderness and asks them about her cat. They lead her on a fun adventure, and eventually she finds her cat in the last place she expected—right under her nose, where cats often are. The ending contains helpful tips on what to do if you ever lose your cat. Great book for young animal lovers!

Age Level: 4 – 6/Preschool – 1st Grade

Born in Roswell, New Mexico, JO ANN JEFFRIES grew up in a military family. It was on a brief layover in Hawaii on the way to Japan that she fell in love with Hawaii. Years later, she found her way back to Hawaii. She married, became a nurse and worked in the neonatal unit Kapi'olani Medical Center. As a coach and referee for AYSO soccer, she enjoyed helping children develop positively and gain confidence in themselves. She has taken Hawaiian language and culture classes. Volunteering at a local Punana Leo preschool, (a Hawaiian medium education preschool) helps her further her learning of Hawaiian. Most of her writing focuses on events in Hawaii as well as other stories that have ties to Hawaii.

DUDLEY AND FRIENDS

a Children's Picture Book Series
by Lori Brown

Dudley and Friends is a series about a farm dog named Dudley who learns about some of the very same subjects children are taught in school. In the first book, Friends Count, Dudley meets some new friends who help him learn to count and get excited about school. Starting in the second book, Ms. Annabelle, the alpaca, teaches class in the barn to Dudley and other young animals on the farm. In each book they learn something new, with prose that is delivered in fun, light-hearted rhymes to make these educational topics engaging and memorable. Currently, the series is focused on teaching about the different parts of speech, such as nouns and verbs, giving young readers a head start in the world of grammar. Great books for encouraging education and having fun in school.

Age Level: 4 – 6/Preschool – 1st Grade

LORI BROWN has been an educator for twelve years, and it is her love of teaching and writing that has given her the inspiration to create her memorable characters. She uses rhyme schemes to help children learn while enjoying the stories they are reading. She lives in McKenzie, Alabama with her husband, Miles.

Fiction/Southern Shorts

There's a certain energy in the South...that feeling that you can't get anywhere else. The people, the language, the land—they all lend themselves to rich, unforgettable stories.

Laura Hunter is a master storyteller who captures not only the romance of life in the South, but also the pain and grittiness. The stories in this collection give glimpses into the lives of fascinating characters—stories of life, death, love, and loss, of dreams shattered and hopes rebuilt. Through it all, Hunter weaves a common thread that remains with the reader long after the book is closed.

Containing award-winning stories, such as:

- Moon Shadows Dancing – Scott and Zelda Fitzgerald Award
- A Widow's Mite – Patricia Boatner Award; Tennessee Mountain Writers
- She (Carter's Woman) – H E Francis Award; University of Alabama, Huntsville Campus, Harriet Arnow Award for Short Stories – Appalachian Writers Association
- Waiting for the Pink – Hackney Award; Birmingham Southern College

LAURA HUNTER was raised in Alabama hill country and now lives near Tuscaloosa. She has published sixteen award-winning fiction pieces and nine poems, in addition to the numerous articles published through different media outlets. She has written a collection of fictional short stories focused on Copeland's Crossing, Alabama, which is awaiting publication. Beloved Mother was released Spring 2019.

Praise for Beloved Mother

Laura Hunter has created a world in which the land matters. Set in Appalachia, her novel crosses regional boundaries that include Native American traditions and industrial progress, while exploring the timeless themes of greed, exploitation, kinship, and family....Here, Hunter's love of story shows.

—Wendy Reed, author of An Accidental Memoir

Beloved Mother is an adventure story about three generations of daring women. Hunter tells us that “women have within them so much love and so much hate they sometime confuse the two,” one of the many mysteries about this fast-paced novel that will keep you wondering.

— Denton Loving, author of Crimes Against Birds

Memoir/Biography

A memoir of a retired office worker who has always dreamed of becoming a successful novel writer. Short fictional stories and poems are interspersed with memories of childhood and motherhood and with comical tales of the daily life of this grandmother-turned-author.

Praise for Redbirds, Roses, & Ghosts

REDBIRDS, ROSES, AND GHOSTS celebrates the writer in all of us. With grace, humor, and compassion, Gayle Young captures a lost time for women and their “set-aside” dreams. Part memoir, part dream, the book travels to the past and what might have been, never losing sight of the power of a mother-daughter bond.

—Carolyn Haines, USA Today bestselling author

This is a charmer of a book, a memoir interspersed with short stories and poems, all inspired by Gayle Young's efforts in her first year of retirement to begin her life as a writer, come to terms with her past, and find humor in her daily life and family.

—Jennifer Horne, Alabama Poet Laureate

After being a legal assistant for many years, GAYLE YOUNG retired to pursue the calling she had found when her sixth-grade teacher picked her play to be performed by the class: writing. She has published short pieces in newspapers, anthologies, and magazines. Redbirds, Roses, and Ghosts is her first book-length work, a humorous, heartfelt memoir about the challenges of becoming a writer. Her most important role is wife to her husband Larry and Mom and Nana to her children, grandchildren, and dogs, some of whom appear, reluctantly, in her writings.

THE RECKONING

a Historical Fiction
by Tim Kent

Softcover 978-1-949711-01-1 • 6x9 • $24.95
240 pages • Release: November 2020
Historical Fiction

From 1750 to 1848, the Southeastern frontier westward expansion was bringing pioneers into the Native American struggle for survival. It was the most dangerous period in history for a pioneer family to establish a home, as their entrance into the land clashed with the native people who were fighting for everything they possessed, including their very identity. In order to avoid removal, some Native Americans gave up their claim to the name, and there are many of their descendants today who cannot trace their ancestry on the Dawes Rolls.

“The Reckoning gives great significance to our nation’s history and heritage of frontier pioneers and Native Americans, as ethnic groups and cultures are intertwined across the southeastern landscape of the United States. The Reckoning brings to life the characters in the story that leaves very little to the imagination!”

TIM KENT is a Civil War Historian, lieutenant commander of his local SCV camp & former first sergeant with the 26th Alabama infantry re-enactment group. His interest in the Civil War began at the age of six when he overheard a conversation between his uncles regarding this momentous time in our nation’s history. He has been studying all aspects of the War ever since.

In addition to authoring his own books, he has assisted other authors in researching material for their books and was involved with the Wide Awake Films Civil War documentaries at Perryville. In 2012 he was commissioned as the writer and historical director for the documentary Sesquicentennial Civil War History of Colbert County Alabama. Tim is also a much sought-after speaker on Civil War History. Once you meet him you will understand why! His love for history is contagious!

DOUBLEHEAD: LAST CHICKAMAUGA CHEROKEE CHIEF

a Nonfiction Book
by Rickey Butch Walker

Paperback 978-1-934610-67-1 • 7.5x9.25 • $24.95
280 pages • Available Now • Nonfiction

Among all the famous Native American Indian chiefs, people today easily recognize names like Geronimo, Tecumseh, and Crazy Horse. However, unless you live in Alabama or Tennessee, chances are you've never heard of Cherokee Chief Doublehead. Described as overbearing, hot-tempered, and haughty, he possessed possibly one of the strongest personalities of any man who lived at the time. Through sheer force of will, Chief Doublehead became the principal leader among the Cherokees. Refusing to cede the valuable hunting grounds to white intruders, he managed to confederate several tribes of Indians to wage war for twenty-five years. It has been said that Doublehead killed more men than anyone who lived during this time period. Butch Walker has written an excellent biography on the great chief, which has been long overdue. Walker takes Doublehead from warrior to famous chief to shrewd businessman. Butch Walker has painstakingly researched all available material on the fierce Cherokee Chief Doublehead. This is a must-read for anyone interested in Native American history.

RICKEY BUTCH WALKER is a life-long native son of the Warrior Mountains. He descends from Cherokee, Creek, and Celtic (Scots-Irish) people who migrated into the hills and coves of the mountainous region of North Alabama some 250 years ago. He, as was his father, is a member of the Echota Cherokee Tribe of Alabama.

Mr. Walker retired after some 35 years with the Lawrence County Board of Education. He taught high school for 11 years and served as director of Lawrence County Schools' Indian Education Program until his retirement in 2009. He was responsible for ensuring that Indian students were taught culturally related academic skills. Walker wrote and developed a study guide for teachers and students in the Lawrence County, Alabama school system. Walker has written over a dozen books, which can be found in the backlist.

MORE TO THIS SERIES COMING SOON:
Cotton Was King Madison & Morgan Counties

On September 16-18, 1816, the Turkey Town Treaty was negotiated at Turkey Town some five miles northeast of Gadsden, Alabama. The treaty gave the Indian Territory of the present-day counties of Colbert-Franklin, Lauderdale, Lawrence, Limestone, Madison, and Morgan in Alabama to the United States government. Leaders of the Cherokee and Chickasaw Indians signed the treaty. The treaty was ratified by Congress in July 1817, which opened Alabama for statehood.

The Alabama Plantation Series of "Cotton Was King" focuses on the wealthy slave owning planters who took advantage of these new lands to increase their wealth in the white gold of cotton. Because of the large number of cotton planters and slaves who came to the Tennessee Valley area of Alabama, each county will be a separate book in the series. The three books that have been completed include Lauderdale, Franklin, and Lawrence. Since Colbert County was recognized after the Civil War, it was included in the books of Franklin and Lawrence.

During the Revolutionary War, General Priestly entrusted his children, Sally and Roger, to help their mother deliver the money to pay the Continental Army. After their home was attacked and burned by British soldiers, they managed to escape and set out on their perilous mission to bring the payroll to General Washington. They struggled through countless obstacles, knowing that if they didn't succeed, it would halt progress in the war. Hardships like the ones in this story, based on truth, were endured by many to bring about the privileges modern Americans enjoy today.

Grade: 4th – 6th

ANGELA BROYLES enjoys historical research and sharing it with others. She founded Bluewater Publications in 2000, but as with all exploits, it was in the making long before the actual inception. Prior to publishing, Angela was the owner of an independent bookstore giving her the initial knowledge in marketing an independent author. BWPublications.com has over 150 titles in their backlist with an additional 12-15 titles planned to release the next few seasons.

LIFE & TIMES OF GENERAL SAM DALE: Mississippi and Alabama Territory a Biography by John F. H. Claiborne, foreword by Angela Broyles

Biography

This 160-year-old narrative of one of the South's notable historical figures has been republished for the Alabama Bicentennial. Sam Dale was a frontiersman who lived from 1772 to 1841, best known for his 8-day ride from Georgia to New Orleans in 1811 to deliver a message to Andrew Jackson, which would have taken most men a hard 14-day ride, and for his famous canoe battle. It could be said that Sam Dale dedicated his life to fighting for the safety of the frontier settler. His impact on battles, politics, and trade routes was momentous for the development of Alabama and Mississippi. This is his life, written in his own words through the transcript of historian J. F. H. Claiborne with updates for the modern era.

Christian Self-Help

The U.S. has one of the highest rates of addiction, depression, anxiety, OCD, ADD, ADHD, obesity, and cancer in the world. We use more pharmaceuticals than any other nation. These statistics are not much different in the church, and yet the Bible says it should not be so. Many Christians simply don't know how to apply biblical principles of body, soul, and spirit to their daily lives. In her 30-year journey with Christ, Robin Perry Braun has uncovered many truths in science which align with biblical principles. Much of the church has labeled this science as "New Age" or "witchcraft." This book is an effort to align science and scripture in practical, life-giving principles that, when applied, can take you from just surviving to thriving and becoming a world-changer.

ROBIN PERRY BRAUN, MPsy is a Holistic Energy Practitioner. For over 25 years she has researched techniques that bring healing to body, soul, and spirit, and she has developed her own certified modality and trains people all over the world. She has found great and lasting results with this model and is passionate about educating people in holistic wellness, as well as helping people to understand themselves from a quantum energy perspective and how to live a life of thriving and fulfilling their destiny. Robin has an established private practice in Dallas, TX, a growing practice in Round Rock, TX, and is a regular guest expert on the national iHeartRadio show One Life Radio. She is the mom of four amazing girls and soon to be a grandmother. She travels to do retreats and live trainings and believes in empowering healers to be more effective with her modality. She loves collaborating with other like-minded healers and believes in the synergy of different giftings coming together for magnified results.

Fiction

The Gray Heron is a friend and spiritual guide for Leroy, a man who enjoys the simpler things in life while also detesting the mundane. Finding the right balance in retirement isn't easy, and helping raise two children during old age comes with complications. He takes peace from his feathered companion as he questions whether the bits of happiness in life outweigh the sorrows.

Advance Praise

Gray Heron is an interesting read with some thought-provoking themes. The action scenes are well researched and described, and used effectively to break the progression of family events. Characters are well drawn and believable and descriptions of scenery pique the senses well.

—Millie Thom

Gray Heron, in essence, is a dramatic tryst with destiny. . . . John Wilde pens an intriguing tale of how nature and nurture shape two impressionable minds. The characters are endearing, complex, and hopeful. His narrative has an engaging charm like a southern drawl.

—Ruby Mohan

JOHN WILDE was born in 1950, and life was anything but typical. As a boy, his world was filled with constant change. His home served as a way-station for children waiting for adoption, and twenty-seven foster kids filtered in and out of his life as he grew up. With all their different struggles and hardships, those kids molded him into who he is today and helped him understand why love is the greatest healer. During his forty-four years of working in sales, he developed a passion for writing. Gray Heron is his first published work, and he has plans for more.

Children's Fiction

A boy named David visits his mother's native home, the Marshall Islands, to celebrate the birthday of his grandfather. There he meets his cousin Betra, a girl his own age. She introduces him to the way of life on her island and the culture of her people. David has a wonderful time, until he learns that a sea turtle is going to be served for the birthday dinner! He teams up with Betra to try and save the endangered creature's life.

This fictional story offers an accurate portrayal of Marshallese life, written by a U.S. Army Environmental Protection Specialist working with the Republic of the Marshall Islands for over 25 years. A great resource for learning about a new culture, conserving endangered species, and the importance of family.

Age Level: 7 – 9/1st – 3rd grade

MARK HUBBS is an eleven year veteran of the U.S. Army Infantry. He left active duty in 1992 and retired from the Army Reserve in 2001. Since leaving active duty he has worked as a historic preservation specialist and archaeologist for the US Army Space and Missile Defense Command. His work has taken him to several far flung islands in the Pacific where the fierce battles of World War II have left relics both above and below the surface of the coral sand.

Mark has had a life-long passion for history. This interest ranges from battles and leaders to the more mundane cultural and material history of the common people who were the real heroes of the past. History is more than anything else the story of ordinary people and how those people reacted to extraordinary circumstances. For almost four decades Mark has learned first hand how the people of the past lived by participating in costumed living history programs at scores of American battlefields and historic sites.

In the twilight days of slavery, thirteen year old Ephraim Wright suffers the depredations of war along with the white family who reared him. Raised with the family since he was two years old, he is never once required to call Jonathan Wright, his benevolent owner, "master." His speech, manners and outlook on life are more akin to his white "siblings" than the other slaves in the community who chide him for being a "pet" and "talkin' like white folk." He is stranded between two worlds; that of free whites, and of enslaved blacks.

SHADOW FOR HIRE

a Trilogy
by Peter Last

Meet The Shadow, the most notorious group of mercenaries never seen. Their motto, “Anything for the money,” is their guiding light. And they have done terrible things indeed in the name of this way of life. But the winds of change are blowing, and fate is about to play its heavy hand.

Join The Shadow in an episodic adventure of danger, action, and intrigue. Will they die the villain, or live long enough to see themselves become the hero?

Praise

The plot was well written and the characters continued to develop throughout. Despite their criminal nature, the characters increasingly surprise the reader as they slowly become more akin to their conscience and desire to do what's right.

PETER LAST was very nearly born in an elevator and has continued to be unconventional ever since. He is the sixth child in a large family but, despite having been homeschooled from kindergarten until twelfth grade, has an expansive social life and has never been locked in a closet. He began writing his first novel, Guardians of Magessa, at the age of eleven, receiving great encouragement from his family in the form of compliments such as “Your book is actually not that bad!”

After earning his degree in Civil Engineering and commission in the United States military, he is now serving in the US Air Force, protecting the nation from its enemies, termites, and HVAC outages. In the little spare time he has, Peter writes a blog (peterlast.blogspot.com) where he posts short stories, reviews books and movies, and addresses a mixture of serious and absurd topics, from global warming to pencil sharpeners. Peter's other hobbies include drawing, dabbling in amateur film directing, and discharging powerful firearms at shooting ranges. At present, he is busy finishing up In the Service of the King, the third and final book in his Shadow for Hire series.

THE BIRTHRIGHT CHRONICLES

a Trilogy
by Peter Last

Senndra never chose to be the adopted daughter of one of the nation's most revered magicians, but wanting to honor her father and also break out from his shadow, she trains at the academy for dragon riders. Josiah is an intrepid cadet and natural tactician destined to lead the armies of Magessa. Joined by a warrior of the highest caliber, a defunct magician, and the rest of the next generation of the country's defenders, they must risk life and limb to protect the realm. Strong bonds are forged in fierce battle, but each attack brings more light to a sinister conspiracy. As each thread of the diabolical web is untangled, their unwitting involvement seems more and more likely, leaving a single, gnawing question. Is the birthright a blessing or a curse?

War is imminent. With only a handful of untrained men can they protect the Prince of Andrea and muster an army?

C.R. FULTON travels the east coast in an RV with her husband, two kids, and two dogs, Atlantic and Ocean. She is also a Young Living Executive, so marrying oils with murder mystery writing seemed natural. She is the author of The light of Andrea, a Robin Hood style action adventure series, and a spiritual thriller due in 2021. Acrylic painting fuels her writing creativity, homeschooling her children keeps her sharp, but Jesus is the center of it all.

JEROME ROAMS FROM HOME & JEROME ROAMS BACK HOME

Release: June 2020 • Children's Fiction

This is a flipbook that contains two stories in one. Jerome is an RV who sets out to travel all by himself. In Jerome Roams from Home, his adventures take him over flatlands, mountains, and valleys as he seeks and makes new friends.

He makes his return trip in Jerome Roams Back Home. This time he travels a different way by the water. "With eyes wide open and using his ears, Jerome saw and heard all there was to see and hear!" Jerome learns that it's good to go, but it's also good to come back home.

PATRICIA MANESS has always dreamed of writing children's books. She has recently retired from teaching band for over 36 years. The idea for "Jerome" came from summer vacations with her husband, driving in an RV and observing all the different types of RVs on the road. She began to notice that each one had a character of their own and started sketching them, giving each RV a unique personality and name. Patricia and her husband, Carl, live in South Alabama, where she loves to garden, cook, read, write, and listen to music.

Children's Fiction

Little Feather is a young girl who lives in a village on a tropical island. She is naturally rebellious with a thirst for adventure, and adventure finds her. Pirates attack, threatening the safety of the villagers and the carefully guarded secret that is hidden away somewhere on the island. Little Feather is desperate to help defend her home, but she finds a way that is even better than her trusty bow and arrow. The Secret in the Jungle is a story of compassion, forgiveness, and learning to let go of hate and greed. Written by the author when she was a child herself, the simple message reminds us that the heart of a child can be extraordinarily wise.

Advance Praise

The Secret in the Jungle is a delightful book that will be a great asset in the classroom. Little Feather learns to obey, and her merciful heart is a great example for children. The questions after the story create lots of opportunities for activities in the classroom. I highly recommend this book to be used at home or in schools!

—Hannah Sorrell, Middle School teacher

LILY SEIBERT began writing when she was only eight years old, and she is now publishing her first children's book at nineteen. A lover of imagination and storytelling, she is excited to begin her career as an author. Along with children's stories, Seibert also has plans to write historical fiction for young adults. She has a passion for history and learning even the smallest facts and details. Originally from Alabama, she is currently studying for a degree in communications.

SECRETS OF THE CHEROKEE HIDEAWAY

a Historical Fiction Series
by Wheeler Pounds

Many years ago, a young Cherokee family escaped the Trail of Tears and began documenting their life of hiding in the Sipsey Wilderness of Alabama. In present day, an adventurous hiker with Native American lineage stumbles upon a sealed box in the forest containing a journal. During his journey to learn more, he is lead to the living descendants of the writer of the journal. Together, they begin working to unravel mysteries of the past, finding more clues of daring individuals who defied the immoral laws of the land for the hope of a better life.

WHEELER POUNDS grew up in rural Alabama, and he has always possessed a deep connection to the outdoors and his Native American heritage. He is a member of the Echota Cherokee Tribe of Alabama, of which he is the chief of the Blue Clan. For thirty years he was employed by the State Board of Pardons and Paroles and was an adjunct instructor of Criminal Justice at Faulkner University.

Since retiring, he has been able to devote time to his favorite hobby of being an avid hiker. He has backpacked the majority of the National Parks in the United States but maintains that his favorite is Bankhead National Forest, which is near his home. He is also a committed husband, father, and grandfather and has dedicated a significant portion of his life to volunteer work.

Praise

Wheeler Pounds captivates us with wisdom accumulated over eighty years of experiencing life, from an Alabama logger, to a Cherokee Chief, to a world traveler and missionary. Not only does he offer a fascinating journey down memory lane into the past, but also thought provoking insights into the world of today and its possible future.

—Terry Michael, M.A. English, West Point Instructor

Wheeler Pounds, an extraordinary man who struggled against the steep incline to get up Fool's Hill in his younger days, is nearing the bottom of the hill on the other side after some eighty years of life. His time on earth as an impoverished country boy to the top of the hill in a successful professional career has had its ups and downs, but his experiences along the way have given him a unique perspective on the changes in the ways of living from his beginning until now. As Wheeler walked the road of life, he noted many differences from the 1930s and 40s to now in 2018, and he describes those things that he has experienced, observed, and taken from his memory bank in this revealing book of his life.
